

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

The Curriculum

In addition to our standard, college preparatory curriculum, the English Department offers seven different Advanced Placement (AP) and Honors courses:

English I: Grammar, Composition, and Literature
Honors English I

(Part of the Streicher Program for the Humanities)

English II and Honors English II: Survey in American Literature

English III and Honors English III: Survey in English Literature

English IV and Honors English IV: Diverse Perspectives in Literature and Composition

AP Seminar (Part of the AP Capstone Program)

AP English Literature and Composition

AP English Language and Composition

Beyond the Classroom

The English Department provides students with a variety of extracurricular opportunities to write and publish in authentic ways. Young Authors Club, Vista (student literary and arts magazine), and The Eye (student newspaper) are all moderated by members of the English Department.

Our Teachers

The English Department's seventeen faculty members hold a variety of advanced degrees in the fields of Education, English, and Humanities including Master of Arts (M.A.), Master of Education (M.Ed.), Master of Science (M.S.), and Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.).

"Teaching high school boys is hard work - yet so much fun. They never cease to make me laugh. It is my honor and privilege to do this job."

-Cindy Hruby, English Department
